If you think you have been mis-sold Payment Protection Insurance (PPI) in the Nottingham area, it's never too late to claim a refund, but it may be soon.

The Financial Conduct Authority is proposing to bring the shutters down on Britain's biggest ever financial mis-selling scandal – the payment protection insurance debacle – it looks likely that there will be a deadline of spring 2018 for people to submit their claims for compensation.

You cannot have escaped the general furore about the mis-selling of payment protection insurance over the last few years. If you are unsure whether this applies to you, consider if you've ever taken out a credit card, had finance for a large purchase such as a car or home improvements; insurance, bank loan or mortgage. If the answer is 'yes' and even if this was a number of years ago, you may have been mis-sold PPI.

It's never too late to claim a refund and Curtis Parkinson has been successful in reclaiming monies for clients across Nottingham.

Very patient, helpful and most knowledgeable.

How to claim

The team at Curtis Parkinson will assist you in claiming any monies paid out for mis-sold PPI plus interest due. We offer a free initial interview to discuss the circumstances of your claim and work on a 'no win, no fee' basis. If successful, the fee would be 25% inclusive of VAT of all sums recovered.

So, if you're still unsure, Contact us now today. You've nothing to lose.
